

A National Voice

What you want to say

How you want to say it

Voice
getting young voices heard

Young people in care are the experts in their own lives; they know more about the care system than anyone. We want to make sure they are listened to. So we are recruiting volunteers from around the country, who are in, or leaving care, to be Ambassadors for A National Voice.

The Ambassadors will work together on project that will challenge the stereotypes about young people in care and get their voices heard around the country. They choose what they want to say and how they want to say it. We will pay for travel, provide training and support the Ambassadors to take the project where they want it to go.

I want to have a positive impact on the care system... I hope to make it easier for care leavers and children in care while also giving them the opportunity to grow and see the value in themselves -
